REPLY: The author is correct in stating that the use of the term "receptor" is not appropriate in this context. The term "receptor" is typically used to describe a protein that binds to a ligand and initiates a signal transduction pathway. In this case, the protein is not a receptor, but a component of the cell's internal signaling system. The author's use of the term "receptor" is therefore incorrect.

1. The first of these is the fact that the Commission has not yet received any information from the Government of the United Kingdom regarding the progress of its investigation into the alleged activities of the British Security Establishment in the United States. It is therefore requested that the Government of the United Kingdom should provide the Commission with the results of its investigation as soon as possible.
