This Conveyance is intended as a mortgage to secure the payment of the sum of Four Hundred Twenty Five $\frac{00}{100}$ (\$425.00) Dollars, in accordance with the tenor of a certain promissory note of which the following is a copy to-wit:

$425.00 May 16th, 1902.

Ninety days after date, without grace, I promise to pay to H. L. Powers or order, Four hundred twenty five Dollars, in U. S. Gold Coin, for value received, with interest after date in like coin, at the rate of 8 per cent per annum until paid, interest payable when due. And in case suit or action is instituted to collect this note or any part thereof, I promise to pay such additional sum as the Court may adjudge reasonable as attorney's fees in said suit or action.

Now, if the sum of money mentioned in said promissory note shall be paid according to the agreement therein expressed, this conveyance shall be void, but in case default shall be made in the payment of the principal & interest, as above provided, then the said promissory note shall be the option of the legal owner and holder thereof, at once become due and payable, and such owner and holder by reason thereof may foreclose this mortgage at any time thereafter, and sell the premises above described, with all and every of the appurtenances, or any part thereof, in the manner prescribed by law, and out of the money arising from such sale, retain the said principal and interest, together with the cost and charges of making such sale, and a reasonable sum as attorney's fees and the surplus if any there be, paid over to the said Albert E. Weber & Maggie Weber his wife heirs or assigns. In case a suit is instituted to foreclose this mortgage for any of the reasons herein contained, the plaintiff in such suit shall be entitled to recover such ~~sum~~ as the court shall adjudge reasonable as attorney's fee thereon, and the said part of the ~~first~~ part for this sum, executors and administrators do covenant and agree
