Attachment A

During the month of May, 2006, negotiations started between the heirs of Lee Lupfer (deceased owner of listed property) and Charles and Celeste Fender (Claimants) to purchase property at 902 Alder Road Washougal, Washington. A mutual agreement was entered for a purchase price of $237,500.00 between all parties involved. All parties signed a purchase contract for this price, the last signature to the contract was dated 5/30/06 and on this date the contract went into affect. A section of the contract (attached) stipulated that the buyers (Claimants) were allowed to conduct a "feasibility" study to ensure that the property allowed for them to build a house. This study included the assurance of water and septic feasibility.

The Claimants then hired a septic company to dig 'perc' test holes, applied for a septic permit with Skamania County, and conducted field mowing to accomplish this work. The Claimants paid out a total of $1157.00 in this process.

On 6/19/06 the Claimants signed title purchase papers with Stewart Title Company and deposited a check for closing costs and the down payment for the purchase. One signature for the sellers was on the title contract, but Claimants were told by the title company that things were put on hold by the sellers. On 6/21/06, Claimants had a phone conversation with one of the sellers (Theresa Martinez), who told the Claimants that the sale was put on hold because some of her siblings now wanted more money from the Claimants to purchase the property. On or about 6/22/06 Claimants had a phone conversation with another sibling seller (Shelly and Jerry Thomas) who told Claimants that they now felt the property was worth more money and if the Claimants wanted to buy it the purchase price was now $500,000.00. Claimants told the Thomas' that they had a signed purchase contract with all the parties involved for the price of $237,500.00.

On, or about, 7/14/06 Claimants had another phone conversation with Thomas, who told Claimants that the sellers wanted to break the contract, but that the sellers were going to reimburse Claimants for the amount of money Claimants had into the property, $1157.00. Between this date and 9/05/06, Claimants had several other phone conversations with Thomas who continued to reiterate that the sellers were going to reimburse Claimants for the $1157.00, they just needed more time. Claimants and Thomas agreed that a deadline for this reimbursement would be no later than 10/01/06. Claimants also told Thomas that if they were not reimbursed by this date, they would apply for a lien against the property. Thomas told Claimants he agreed and understood.

On 9/05/06, Claimants had another phone conversation with Thomas, who told Claimants that the sellers would not be able to pay Claimants, as agreed, until after the sale of the property. The sellers, despite their contract to sell the property to Claimants, had now placed the property up for sale through a real estate agent. Claimants advised Thomas that this was not what was agreed to, nor was it acceptable by them, and that Claimants were going to go through with the lien process.
