Community Property Agreement

On this day Sept 20, 2016, we Rebecca Elaine Daman and Glenn C. Daman, a married couple of Skamania County, Washington, enter into this Community Property Agreement with the intention of affecting the characterization and disposition of our property, as permitted by the Revised Code of Washington 26.16.120.

We revoke all prior community property agreements, and we understand that if this agreement conflicts with any other of our estate plans or other agreements, that this Community Property Agreement is likely to supersede the others, in accordance with Washington law.

With the intention of leaving all of our property to the other and avoiding the expense and delay of probate when the first of us dies, we agree that:

1. Upon the death of the first of us to die, all property we each own at that time, including separate property and jointly owned property, shall be community property.
2. Upon the death of the first of us to die, all community property of the deceased shall immediately transfer to the survivor as his or her sole and separate property.
3. We may amend or revoke this Agreement at any time. Any amendment or revocation shall be written, signed by both of us, and acknowledged by a notary public.
4. This Agreement shall be automatically revoked upon a court-ordered termination of our marriage.
5. This Agreement shall be automatically revoked if we die simultaneously, or if the order of our deaths cannot be reasonably determined.

1. The first step in the process of identifying a problem is to define the problem clearly. This involves identifying the symptoms of the problem and determining the scope of the problem. Once the problem has been defined, the next step is to identify the causes of the problem. This involves identifying the factors that are contributing to the problem and determining the underlying causes. Once the causes have been identified, the next step is to develop a plan of action. This involves identifying the steps that need to be taken to solve the problem and determining the resources that will be needed to implement the plan. Once a plan of action has been developed, the next step is to implement the plan. This involves carrying out the steps that have been identified in the plan and monitoring the progress of the implementation. Finally, the last step in the process is to evaluate the results of the implementation. This involves assessing the effectiveness of the plan and determining whether the problem has been solved.

1. The first step in the process of the investigation is to identify the problem. This is done by gathering information about the situation and the people involved. The next step is to define the problem in terms of specific goals and objectives. This is followed by a search for possible solutions. The final step is to implement the chosen solution and evaluate its effectiveness.

bioactive compounds in the diet. The authors also suggest that the use of a low-carbohydrate diet may be beneficial for the management of type 2 diabetes.
